

The Cambridge ACT Review Course is designed to provide students with complete preparation for the ACT (American College Testing) Assessment. The course includes classroom lessons, practice tests, skill reviews and exercises, and actual test simulation. Each of these program components has been carefully designed to maximize the effectiveness of the Cambridge ACT Review Program.

ACT Prep reviews key skills in English, reading, math and science using the latest versions of the test being offered. The single-subject approach allows students to concentrate on areas of greatest need, saving money and time.

The math section covers arithmetic, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry as well as science reasoning. The English section covers grammar, sentence structures, punctuation errors, non-idiomatic expressions, and reading techniques.

The ACT Prep course meets a total of 15 hours over five weeks. Tuition is $80.00, including materials.

(Tuition does not cover the ACT test. You will need to register separately for the ACT test at www.actstudent.org.)

ACT Preparation at FZS

Today's students are finding the admission and scholarship process highly competitive. One of the most important student career factors could be acceptance to the university of choice.

Colleges use the scores from the American College Testing Program (ACT) to select applicants and award scholarship monies. Review courses, such as this one offered at Fort Zumwalt South High School, frequently help to increase scores, in part through diminishing test anxiety. While enrolling in a course does not automatically ensure higher test results, analyzing strategies to master reading comprehension, analogy exercises, writing samples, and comprehensive math skills will often boost student confidence and scores.

During the first session, students take a prep-test using an official retired test to help identify their strengths and weaknesses. Each student will receive a report which includes an official score and areas where the student must focus his or her energy for maximum score improvement. This information is used by teachers of the program to help students improve on their areas of weakness. Attendance at the first session is strongly encouraged.
